President's Message

It's time to celebrate! Springtime is always an exciting time for the Chapter. Our March meeting recognizes and awards scholarships to the ROTC and JROTC cadets. The smiles of the cadets and proud parents is a marvelous thing to behold. MajGen Angie Salinas, Marine retired – though Marines never retire – gave such a super presentation to the audience, especially the young people. Thank you cadets, parents and the ROTC/JROTC staffs for your hard work.

Chapter staff and volunteers are now fanning out into the community to attend the various school events. MOAA awards are being presented to the cadets. Again, what a wonderful experience! Thanks to all who are traveling to the various schools. We are engaging with nine university ROTC programs as well as over 120 high school JROTC programs. Thanks to all!

One of the other significant recognitions that we work on each year is the United Way Volunteer of the Year Awards and the JBSA Volunteer of the Year Awards. Staff nominated Frank and Stephen Rohrbough to each of the awards. Frank and Stephen are the co-chairs of the Chapter Golf Tournament Committee. They have consistently led the team in creating the fantastically successful golf experiences that have generated the funds for the scholarships and our support for the Ft. Sam Houston Warrior and Family Support Center.

The United Way celebration was held at the Tobin Center for the Arts on April 9. David Patrick and I were there in support. A super event. The JBSA event was April 17 at the Ft Sam Houston Family Readiness Center. As always, standing room only in support of all of the volunteers. David, Chapter Board Chair Barbara Ramsey, Board member Ed Marvin, Jim Cunningham and I were there in support. Lots of cheering for the brothers!

Also recognized from other organizations were Alamo MOAA members John Franklin for his work with his work at the Department of Family and Community Medicine at BAMC and Kerry Reyna for her efforts as a civilian worker at JBSA. Alamo MOAA members shine!

These are beautiful examples of our living the MOAA motto of “Never Stop Serving”. We are always looking for ways to serve our Alamo MOAA membership and the San Antonio community. If you are looking for ways to get involved, contact Pete Schaub, Volunteer Coordinator, or any of the staff.

Thanks to all who are our volunteers. It's my pleasure to work with you.

SBP/DIC Offset

My name is Kathryn Fellure and I am the surviving spouse of LTC Michael Fellure, USA in San Antonio.

I am working to change the law known as the widows tax or SBP/DIC Offset. I am part of a grassroots effort that is working together with other widows, family of widows, military members and retirees to change the law.

We need the help of all Texas MOAA members to make these calls.

I know MOAA had a pamphlet in their magazine a few months ago that they asked you mail out. It helped, but we need more than one letter. We need phone calls to be made now.

S622 and HR 553 are companion bills that will eliminate the offset and restore earned benefits to military widows. These bills will also address the "kiddie tax" issue by allowing widows to change SBP beneficiary to themselves.

The following Texas Congressmen have not co-signed. Our Senators, Cruz and Cornyn have not co-signed.

Please call (Do not leave message. Choose the option to speak to staff member) and say:

House: "My name is _____ and I live in Texas. I am calling on behalf of 7,825 Texas Military Widows. Please ask the Congressman to Co-Sponsor HR553: Military Surviving Spouses Equity Act."

- Are You
1. Considering joining a MOAA chapter?
  2. Debating whether to renew your chapter membership?
  3. Talking to a potential new member?

Here are some of the key benefits to belonging to one of MOAA's more than 400 chapters:

- Connections: When you attend chapter meetings, become active on a committee, or take a prominent leadership role, you will forge lasting ties with other MOAA members who have common professional interests and similar association concerns.
- Community involvement: Chapter membership provides opportunities to contribute to your community in a variety of ways, from providing scholarships to local students to supporting causes that support wounded warriors, active duty servicemembers and their families, and veterans in-need.
- Legislative advocacy: MOAA chapter members play a critical role in advancing legislation at both the state and national level. This grassroots advocacy is key to MOAA achieving its legislative goals.

MOAA Alamo Chapter? - Who Are We?

MOAA is a non profit veterans' association dedicated to maintaining a strong national defense and ensuring our nation keeps its commitments to currently serving, retired, and former members of the uniformed services and their families and survivors.

The Alamo Chapter is one of the more than 400 local organizations affiliated with national MOAA. We support the national organization through membership recruitment, veterans transition initiatives and legislative support. We are active in our community doing transition activities for JBSA and the military/veteran community; state legislative support via Texas Coalition of Veterans Organizations (TCVO) and the Texas Council of Chapters (TCC).

Blister Care

When a water blister develops the first step is to avoid what caused it. Then the other is the matter of protecting the blister until your skin heals.

If the blister isn't too painful leave unbroken skin over a blister to act as a natural barrier to infection. Protect an intact blister by covering it with a bandage. If more protection is needed cut a piece of cushioned padding, such as moleskin, into a doughnut shape and place the pad so that it encircles the blister. The pad can then be covered by a breathable bandage.

For painful blisters you can drain the blister with these steps:

- Clean. Wash your hands and the blister with soap and water.
- Swab the blister with rubbing alcohol or iodine and sterilize a clean needle the same way.
- Puncture the blister with the needle by poking a few holes near the blister's edge. Let the fluid drain but keep the skin intact as a protective barrier.
- Protect the blister. Apply an ointment such as vaseline or zinc oxide and cover the blister with a bandage.
- Keep an eye on things. Check the blister every day for signs of infection. You can usually cut away dead skin after a few days using sterilized tweezers or scissors.

Some home remedies include applying the gel from an aloe vera plant to the wound. Some farmers recommend pouring powdered black pepper on the wound. Apply an ice pack as soon as possible. And cover with a band aid.

If you have a fever blister on your lip, as soon as you feel the tingling, add Capsaicin ointment several times. It burns slightly, but no blister. Some recommend Vitamin E ointment to the fever blister several times a day.

Decoration Day

Today's Memorial Day is a federal holiday on the fourth Monday of May. The long history of this day began during our Civil War in the 1860's. During the war, people of the South recognized their dead soldiers. This became more organized in 1865 with events occurring throughout the south at the end of May with the decorating of the graves of the fallen.

In 1868 by General John Logan, Commander in Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, established a national day of remembrance for those who lost their lives in service to our country. This Grand Army was an organization of Union veterans. The date of May 30 was chosen not to honor a specific battle but to honor the dead. General (later President) James Garfield gave the speech at the First Decoration Day at Arlington National Cemetery. After the speech, 5,000 people participated in decorating the 20,000 graves in the cemetery.

In 1882, the preferred name of the day had become Memorial Day rather than Decoration Day. States followed by recognizing the day of remembrance. By 1890, most of the Northern states celebrated May 30 as a national holiday. Southern states continued to honor their dead on a separate date, referring to it as the Confederate Memorial Day.

There are many myths regarding the origination of Decoration Day. In 1968, President Lyndon Johnson signed a law recognizing Waterloo NY as the "birthplace" of the celebration 100 years prior. Historians have since debunked this myth and the mystery continues.

The Uniform Federal Holiday Act was signed in 1968 establishing dedicated versus calendar dates for federal holidays. The fourth Monday in May was designated as Memorial Day. Congress enacted the National Moment of Remembrance Act in 2000 requesting everyone stop at 3pm in honor and remember those whose who died while serving.

Celebrations today are nationwide. The primary event is the formal honoring with the laying of the wreath at Arlington's Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. National cemeteries throughout the country, including our Ft Sam Houston National Cemetery, are decorated with American flags from the Boy and Girl Scouts and with wreaths from Wreaths Across America. Ceremonies, picnics and parades highlight the day.

Transitioning Tips

Stop saying you want to “Get your foot in the door”

One of the most gratifying things about working with transitioning veterans is sharing my personal transition story and the lessons I have learned since retiring from the military with those who are coming behind me.

One opinion I often share is not something you should do, but rather something I recommend you stop doing; I recommend removing, “get my foot in the door” from your vocabulary. We all hear this phrase and speak these exact words regularly. However, before uttering this phrase again, consider you might be sending the wrong message.

“I’m looking for an opportunity to get my foot in the door with a great company like yours.”

Most have said this to a recruiter or hiring manager at least once. This is your way of telling an employer that you know you are not entitled to a huge salary and great leadership responsibilities as soon as you join their organization. You recognize the job market is tremendously competitive and you may need to come in at a level lower than your current compensation and scope of leadership. You know it might take some time to “learn the ropes” and assimilate into a new culture. You are OK “paying your dues” while you increase your business acumen and learn how to make a meaningful impact in a corporate environment. You are the perfect candidate, with a great attitude, and you communicate this by telling anybody who will listen that you don’t expect to be hired as a Vice President- you just want to “get your foot in the door.” While your intentions are noble, you might be shooting yourself in that very foot before getting it in the door - look at this from the employer’s perspective.

Understand why the manager is hiring - there is a hole on her team and she is not operating at 100%. She can’t accomplish her mission fully without hiring another person. Consider the time she spends reviewing resumes and conducting interviews; this is time away from her work and it is increasing her backlog.

If she includes members from her team in the interview process it compounds the time spent away from high-priority work. This is not optimal; her team is not firing on all cylinders and she genuinely hopes the next candidate she interviews (YOU) is the one - the perfect fit for her team. She wants to hire you and get her team back on track, at 100% and once again focused on her business priorities. She wants YOU to WIN.

When you tell her you really hope to “get your foot in the door” there is a

Transition Tips

good chance she will hear, "Once I am on your team I will be looking for other opportunities in the organization and I plan to jump ship as soon as something that looks better comes along." She wants to hire a candidate that is fully committed to helping her team achieve greatness - a person who sees her open position as a destination, not a revolving door. When you jump ship, she must go through the entire hiring process all over again.

This is obviously not the message you want to communicate; choose a different way to express your willingness to learn and grow in the organization and show your eagerness to join her team.

Good corporate leaders, just like good military leaders, want to develop their people so they advance and succeed. They won't expect you to sit in the same role forever; they know you are ambitious, capable and have goals for your career. They will, however, expect commitment and loyalty from you. This is no different than military leaders you may have served under.

Think about this when speaking to recruiters and hiring managers in organizations you hope to work for; think about the employer's perspective and find a better way to communicate your primary objective is to contribute to the team and help them achieve their business objectives. There are better ways to say you want to "get your foot in the door." Try something like this instead:

"I am excited to have the opportunity to work for a company that values professional development - a place where I can learn, grow and contribute to the mission over a long-term, meaningful career. I recognize that this is a people-development company, which is one of the things that most attracted me to your organization."

At my company, we like to say, "Bloom where you are planted." This is to say, give 100% to be the best you can be in your current role. Don't focus on what you think your next job should be. Do this and you will build a great personal brand in the organization and doors will open for you - doors you may not even know exist. Doesn't that sound a lot better than "getting your foot in the door?"
