

Transition Resources

It's a new year and some of you are contemplating your next career. For some that will be your next military assignment. For others though, it will be a post military career. Spouses go through that transition with every PCS. So many things to consider. The question is where to start.

I suggest that you check out the various resources provided by MOAA and the Alamo Chapter. Check out the December issue of Military Officer, a MOAA publication. There is an article focusing on transition that provides a wealth of information. MOAA, through its website, connects with so many different opportunities from webinars to events that connect you with information, networks and other resources that strengthen your path forward.

The Alamo Chapter is your local resource. We provide one-on-one conversations and support as you explore the San Antonio network. Our weekly eblast extends that reach to opportunities within Texas, linking you to resources and opportunities. This is also picked up by MOAA and other partners to spread the word. Our connections with the JBSA Transition Alliance extend our network to over 100 resources, military, nonprofit and employers, all focusing on helping those in transition.

It's up to you to connect. We are here to help. Take advantage of these opportunities. Best wishes.
